

1

LADY GAGA

This one-of-a-kind Thomas Hanisch designer piece was worn by pop star legend Lady Gaga on April 2014, on the streets of New York City.

Location: Lobby

2

MARILYN MANSON

Multi-instrumentalist Tim Skold of Marilyn Manson's band wore this Gucci suit on stage during Manson's 2007 world tour.

Location: Lobby

3

JOHN ENTWISTLE

John Entwistle of The Who is widely regarded as the best bassist in the history of rock music. He wore this purple suit on stage with the group in 1980.

Location: Lobby

4

BRIAN JONES

This stylish grey flannel jacket was owned and worn by Rolling Stones founder Brian Jones in the late '60s. It was made by famed hippie boutique Granny Takes a Trip.

Location: Lobby

5

ELVIS PRESLEY

The King himself purchased this gold suit and tie from Mr. Ray's in Palm Springs, California.

Location: Lobby

6

RIHANNA

A vintage sheer cream wrap with lace trim worn by Rihanna in her 2011 "California King Bed" music video.

Location: GMT+8

7

MADONNA

These rhinestone-studded sandals were worn by the one and only Madonna when she was promoting her hit single "Hung Up" in New York City.

Location: GMT+8

MEMORABILIA GUIDE

Location: Sessions

JOIN OUR MEMORABILIA TOUR

We have display on some of the greatest rock memorabilia; whether you're a rocker who loves The Rolling Stones or a Rihanna fangirl, you'll enjoy the dazzling memorabilia on display throughout our hotel.

Daily 11.00am & 4.00pm

Register at the Concierge to join our tour!

Connect with us:

+607-838 8888

info@hrhdesaru.com

hrhdesarucoast

www.hardrockhotels.com/desaru-coast

8

CHRISTINA AGUILERA

With her vocal virtuosity and pop savvy, Christina Aguilera established herself as one of the top artists of the early 21st century. She wore this feathered gown in the video for her 2006 hit, "Ain't No Other Man". The gown was originally designed to be worn by actress Renee Zellweger in the film "Chicago", but ended up with Christina.

Location: GMT+8

9

IGGY AZALEA

Australian hip hop provocateur Iggy Azalea wore this harem costume in the video for her 2014 hit, "Bounce".

Location: Avalon Foyer

10

FIONA APPLE

One of the most important artists of the 90s, Fiona Apple's mix of introspective song-writing and unique pop sensibility propelled her to the top of the charts. She wore these feathered wings on stage in 1997.

Location: Avalon Foyer

11

THE WHO

John "The Ox" Entwistle of The Who used this incredible Status Buzzard bass on stage with both The Who and his solo group, The John Entwistle Band.

Location: Sessions

12

LED ZEPPELIN

Few artists in history have had an enduring legacy that can match the mighty Led Zeppelin. The drum gear on display is a floor tom in case, a snare drum case, a bass drum hoop and a pedal (2 parts) all made by Ludwig was used by legendary drummer John Bonham and the Native American-style jacket was owned by frontman Robert Plant in the early '70s.

Location: Sessions

13

THE ROLLING STONES

The equipment in this display was used in the studio by the Rolling Stones in the '60s. The Fender speaker cabinet was part of a guitar rig and the upright bass was used on the song "Ruby Tuesday". During the song's recording, Bill Wyman fretted the notes while Keith Richards bowed the strings.

Location: Sessions

14

NO DOUBT

California ska/pop band No Doubt dominated the charts in the late '90s/early '00s and helped launch the career of pop superstar Gwen Stefani. The shirt on display was worn on stage by bassist Tony Kanal and the speaker cabinet was part of the group's stage gear.

Location: Sessions

15

PEPPER

The bass rig and board shorts in this display belonged to Bret Bollinger of Hawaiian reggae/rock group Pepper.

Location: Sessions

16

G. LOVE & SPECIAL SAUCE

When unique hip hop/blues group G. Love & Special Sauce performed at the "Closer to the Sun" festival in Mexico in 2015, G. Love used this bizarre guitar built from a can of surf wax.

Location: Sessions

17

LZZY HALESTORM

This is a custom made leather jacket for Lzzy by the company Hazmat Design. A "custom leather spiked shrug jacket" featuring "Lzzy" on the back. This was worn extensively on tour during the band's shows supporting their second album, 2012's "The Strange Case Of..."

Location: Rock Shop®